

CONTENTS.

i. Egypt, the Land of the Sphinx, . . . 7 ii. The Story of the Pharaohs, . . . 20 iii. The Fall of Egypt, . . . 32 iv. Ancient Babylonia, . . . 51 v. The Assyrian Empire, . . . 64 vi. The Second Empire of Babylonia, . . . 87 vii. The Medes and Persians, . . . 93 viii. Phœnicia, the Carrier of Nations, . . . 112 ix. The Hebrews, . . . 127 x. The Story of Carthage, . . . 134 xi. Greece, the Land of Ideals.—I., . . . 148 xii. Greece, the Land of Ideals.—II., . . . 162	xiii. The Empire of Alexander, . . . 177 xiv. The Making of the Roman Empire, . . . 187 xv. Rome as a World Empire, . . . 208 xvi. The Decline of the Roman Empire, . . . 221 xvii. The Second Empire of the West, . . . 231 xviii. The Mohammedan Empire, . . . 244 xix. The Empire of Charles V., . . . 261 xx. The Growth of the Power of France, . . . 278 xxi. The German Empire, . . . 304 xxii. The British Empire, . . . 316
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------