

Tom and May had been in the town all their lives. All the grass and trees they had seen were in the Park; and most of the cows and sheep they had met were poor beasts on their way through the town to be killed.

---

You may be sure they were glad to think they were to have green grass and trees and cows and sheep of their own.

“When are we to go to our new house?” they