READING LESSON.

Our best friends are those who tell us of our faults, and teach us how to correct them.

Good or bad habits, formed in youth, often go with us through the rest of our lives.

When we confess our errors and faults, and are sorry for them, generous and good people will pity and forgive us.

We must not do wrong because we see or hear of others doing so.

That which is worth doing at all, is worth doing well; but we cannot do any thing well without care and attention.

If we do not take pains, we need not expect to excel in any thing that is good.

But when we do the best we can, we are in the way to improve, and grow better.
