

CHAPTER

The first part of the book is devoted to a general survey of the subject, and to a discussion of the various theories which have been advanced to explain the origin of the human race.

The second part of the book is devoted to a detailed examination of the evidence which has been adduced in support of the various theories, and to a discussion of the relative merits of each.

The third part of the book is devoted to a consideration of the various theories which have been advanced to explain the origin of the human race, and to a discussion of the relative merits of each.

The fourth part of the book is devoted to a consideration of the various theories which have been advanced to explain the origin of the human race, and to a discussion of the relative merits of each.

The fifth part of the book is devoted to a consideration of the various theories which have been advanced to explain the origin of the human race, and to a discussion of the relative merits of each.

The sixth part of the book is devoted to a consideration of the various theories which have been advanced to explain the origin of the human race, and to a discussion of the relative merits of each.

The seventh part of the book is devoted to a consideration of the various theories which have been advanced to explain the origin of the human race, and to a discussion of the relative merits of each.

The eighth part of the book is devoted to a consideration of the various theories which have been advanced to explain the origin of the human race, and to a discussion of the relative merits of each.

The ninth part of the book is devoted to a consideration of the various theories which have been advanced to explain the origin of the human race, and to a discussion of the relative merits of each.